LOGBOOK TRAINING

Logbook training is usually preferred by employers booking in their employees. Logbook training requires the student to only come in, on a Monday initially and do theory training and then the student will receive a logbook to take back to their workplace, to complete the required number of hours. Once these hours are logged, the participant can then book for a Wednesday assessment day. This also lowers the cost of the initial course.

FORMAL TRAINING

To be eligible for formal training, participants must be able to provide an expired copy of their previous ticket. After this has been provided, the participant will only have to complete a two-day course, attending on the Monday and Wednesday of the usual course we run weekly. This also lowers the cost of the initial course.
